GRANTS IDEA TO OOST BUSINESS

Report by Sue Austin

GRANTS to attract new businesses onto Oswestry's shopping streets could be offered as part of a new town council venture.

forming a special task force with the aim of revitalising the town centre. It is part of the council's pledge to keep Oswestry a thriving market town and could bring new names and new jobs.

The move was begun by Councillor John Gareth Jones when he was mayor last year. He said there is still potential for the council to do more and is to head further talks with those marketing empty town centre properties.

Town Clerk David Preston said the council Town Clerk David Preston said the council was planning to talk to estate agents to understand the barriers to letting properties in the shopping areas. He said: "In 2014, Councillor Jones consulted with the agents, particularly in Cross Street and we have seen some success in new shops opening. But there are still empty shops and we want to invite the agents who are marketing the properties to come to an informal meeting where we can see what interest there is in opening shops in the town and also the type of high street retailer who could be attracted here.

"The aim is to understand what is possible and what the town council could offer that would and what the town counter could other that would help. If we felt that there was a meaningful role that the council could play we would look at setting up a promotions group with some resources available, possibly in the form of grants or an incentive scheme for new business."

just what interest is in the town."

The move to drive business forward for Oswestry comes as the town council takes a fresh look at its outdoor markets.

While more people are visiting the town to shop, not enough of them are doing so in the town's markets, council bosses say. As a result, although there has been a five per cent increase in the number of people using the town's car parks, the monthly Friday farmers' market has seen a slump in the number of stallholders setting up shop. And a new outdoor Friday market has yet to prove its worth – although it has been decided to extend it until Christmas to see if it will take off. will take off.

Councillors are looking at whether to move the farmers' market to a new day or location.
Councillor Jones said: "Oswestry is a market town and we must continue to have a market.
"Our indoor one, on Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays, is holding its own but we need more stallholders and more shoppers on the outdoor market."

The order was applied for last May to restrict alcohol consumption in the town centre. But the county council rejected the application, stating that it was not supported by the police.

In a report which went to Welshpool Town Council last night (Wednesday), Robert Robinson, town clerk, said: "The launch of the street drinking charter in English, Welsh and Polish took place at the Welshpool Community Day in June. "Engagement with the Polish community at the two Polish shops was carried out by Halina Ashley of the Polish Welsh Mutual Association and Mike Smith, regional community cohesion coordinator. "The Polish shops agreed to distribute and display Polish copies of the street drinking charter. The Polish shops agreed to scope interest from community members in setting up a Polish Association."

Mr Higman said: "Presently, most coach operators are bypassing Oswestry en route to North Wales, Llangollen for example or even Chester. Some of these tours can easily be persuaded to stop in Oswestry, which would certainly support the town centre retailers and restaurants.

"Other destinations locally could be teamed with the town to either encourage the tour operators to stay overnight or to at least schedule the area as a complete day destination, rather than only aiming at en-

New company to be formed to run council services

The authority was told the figures at a budget seminar held for councillors, who are looking to plug a £27 million funding shortfall over the next three years. Harry Thomas, former chief executive of Gwynedd County Council and recently appointed member of the commission on local government finance, told the seminar that the Powys budget would be £16m higher if the county had received the Welsh average. the county had received the Welsh average. Mr Thomas said the budget situation had been caused by a drop in the population of Powys, but in particular by the drop in the number of school children, who receive a high ranking in the funding formula. Powys County Council leader, Councillor Barry Thomas said: "The council has been saying for some time that it has to change the way it delivers services. The proposed venture will carry out repairs, maintenance, minor works and statutory testing for both council housing and for the council's public and commercial buildings. It will also deliver major building buildings. It will also deliver major building projects and provide technical construction advice to the council. A soft market test was carried out by the council earlier this year that received a "very positive reaction" with nine responses received, Councillor Hayes said.

Hayes said. He added: "We are delighted at the response we received to our work in seeking a partner to form this joint venture company. "The soft market test we carried out has confirmed that there is a commercial appetit

"The council is facing significant finan-cial pressures and needs to make savings of cial pressures and needs to make savings of at least £27m over the next three financial years from April 2016. To do this, we must consider joint venture initiatives where possible as a way to help us achieve these savings. Although this initiative will begin with responsive building repairs and maintenance service, the company could take on other aspects of our property services in the future such as catering or grounds maintenance."

Councillor Graham Brown, cabinet member commissioning and procurement, added: "We've also informed other public bodies in and around Powys of this initiative, as they could be future customers of the new company, and they have responded in a positive manner.

There is still a long way to go but I'm confident that this will be a positive for the council as it will contribute significantly to our long term financial position in a sustainable manner."

surveys or reports are released revealing some "amazing" yet completely obvious statistic and this week produced a gem. It appears that a "Ready To Read" report shows children are start-ing primary school already struggling with language skills and one in four children leave primary school unable to read well. Is anyone out there shocked at these revelations? The surprise would have been if the survey had discovered that children's reading skills were improving. Ask your self when was the last time you saw a child actually reading a book? Unless it was in school or for homework purposes the answer will probably be a very long time ago. Today's children have their heads buried in laptops and iPhones and it's games not words that are occupying their minds. So the responsibility surely rests with parents who must ensure their children have the basic skills at the earliest possible age – or are they too busy on their own iPads?

Are we witnessing the end of street markets? # Rural idyll becoming a distant hope for young

Countryside could become full of 'pensioner pockets' as young people are priced out. Mark Andrews writes.

IF only it were as simple as in Emmerdale. While the village in the TV soap may have its share of crime, drama and intrigue, it also presents a picture of a close-knit. vibrant countryside. where generations of families live, work and socialise together, and look after their neighbours in their time of need.

However, according to a new survey this idyllic view of rural living is under threat. A combination of rockunder threat. A combination of rocketing house prices and low-paid jobs means that for many young people in the countryside, the lifestyle portrayed on TV is but a distant dream. For many young people, the idea of buying a house in the communities their families have lived in for generations is about as realistic as some of the plots from the TV soap.

David Orr, chief executive of the National Housing Federation, says: "Our idealistic view of the English countryside is fast becoming extinct. Workers and

If we don't build more homes, these places will become 'pensioner pockets' rather than the thriving, working communities they can be."

Research by the NHF predicts that six years from now, 38.1 per cent of people living in Shropshire district will be aged over 65, compared to a national average of 29 per cent. By contrast, the predicted number of over-65s living in Telford & Wrekin district is fractionally below the national average, at 28.8 per cent. It is an issue which Shropshire Council leader Keith Barrow is aware of.

"My own son lives in Kent; people go where the money is and where there are jobs," he says. "It's one of the reasons why it was important to bring the (Shrewsbury) university in, to enhance our links with industry, to bring better companies in paying higher wages, and making for a better educated workforce."

Councillor Barrow says transport links are vital to prosperity. "We have carried out improvements to the Mile End roundabout at Oswestry, and we're trying to develop that for industrial use," he says. "We've effectively taken the M54 right the way up to Shrewsbury and we have dual carriageways all the way to Oswestry and Wrexham."

within a generation. To make this happen across the country now it must free up land and provide proper investment in affordable housing."

However, while the need for affordable housing in Shropshire is not in doubt, the decision about where it will go is likely to prove more contentious.

Residents in Market Drayton spoke of their dismay after a plan for 162 homes off Rush Lane was given the green light in May. People in Edgmond, near Newport, have been campaigning against a scheme to build 28 houses off Shrewsbury Road, including displaying 'Save Our Village' placards in the village.

Monica Burns, of the National Housing Federation, says there are other issues to consider. She highlights the government's right-to-buy policy, saying it could make it more difficult for people on low incomes to either buy or rent their homes. "The policy, which means council house tenants can buy their homes at a discounted rate, has already hit rural areas naticularly hard" their homes at a discounted rate, has al-ready hit rural areas particularly hard," she says.

NEIGHBOUR CANNOT LEAVE NURSING HOME AS SHE IS SUBJECT TO A DOLS. WHAT DOES THIS MEAN?

Q: Our elderly neighbour is in a nursing home. Every time I visit her she says she wants to leave. The front door of the home is locked so she cannot get out but she keeps asking me to help her. She says she has received some paperwork saying she is subject to a DoLS. What does this mean?

A: DoLS stands for Deprivation of Liberty Safeguards. These are legally imposed safeguards that aim to ensure people in care homes, hospitals and supported living are looked after in a way that does not inappropriately restrict their freedom. DoLS apply to vulnerable people aged 18 or over who have a mental health condition, including dementia, and who lack the mental capacity to make decisions about their care or treatment.

The key elements of the safeguards are to provide the person with a representative, to give the person or their representative the right to challenge a Deprivation of Liberty through the Court of Protection and to provide a mechanism for Deprivation of Liberty to be regularly reviewed and monitored.

Following a Supreme Court Judgement handed down in March last year, the elements of Deprivation of Liberty include an obligation to live in a particular place, to be subject to constant monitoring and control, to only be allowed out with close supervision and to be unable to move away

If your neighbour has been made subject to a DoLS she will have been given copes of the paperwork setting out why this was necessary. Although it is not always explained to people in her position she has the right, at no cost to her and with the benefit of free legal representation, to challenge DoLS in court. DoLS are however highly complex so your neighbour should seek advice from a specialist solicitor as soon as possible has decided to release them to the public for the first time.

His Facebook posting has caused quite a stir, with scores of comments from shoppers and former staff alike.

Mr Alexander said: "For 10 years we have been writing down some of the more bizarre and funny requests from our wonderful customers. It is in no way intended to poke fun at our customers or to ridicule them, we absolutely love them and appreciate their support."

Among the funny encounters was a request for a bowl suitable for a toothless cat in a camper van. On another occasion a customer started their phone inquiry with: "Hello Alexanders, is that BJ Electricals?"

Mr Alexander said one of the funniest he has seen came from when someone brought back a disposable barbecue set.

favour of the hospital.

Health bosses have revealed four potential temporary changes, including one which could see the consultant-led service at the Maelor dropped in favour of the units at Glan Clwyd Hospital in Bodelwyddan and Ysbyty Gwynedd in Bangor. The Wrexham service is used by many mothers-to-be on the Shropshire border, particularly around Oswestry and north Powys villages.Mr George said: "Clearly, many residents in North Powys rely on materinity services from Wrexham many residents in North Powys rety on maternity services from Wrexham Maelor so the possible downgrading and withdrawal of consultant-led ma-ternity services at the hospital is an issue of serious concern."

w will help dreams come true

EVER dreamed of owning a touring caravan, motorhome or caravan holiday home? An exciting 10-day show in Shrewsbury next month is designed to make your dream come true.

Customers will get their first glimpse of the latest innovations in new holiday homes, touring caravans and motorhomes for 2016 at the West Midlands Caravan and Motorhome Show, from October 3 to 11.

The popular annual show will launch around 40 new models at Salop Leisure's impressive sales centre and holiday home village based altered 55 branchism have act of the salop will show the salop series of the salop 40 new models at Salop Leisure's impressive sales centre and holiday home village based alongside Shrewsbury bypass at Emstrey.

The free event, which attracts thousands of visitors from across the UK, aims to be a one stop shop for existing owners and first time buyers wishing to invest.

Among the new models on display will be the Willerby Shrewsbury holiday home, a special edition designed by and made exclusively for Salop Leisure.

Caravan holiday homes ranging from £19,995 will be on display and buyers investing in the remaining 2015 models will be able to save up to £2,000 on selected models.

For those keen to invest in a new touring caravan, Salop Leisure is offering free delivery, worth around £550, for the duration of the show. There will also be a five per cent saving on all awnings costing £500 and above.

There will be in excess of 250 new and preowned caravan holiday homes, touring caravans and motorhomes to choose from and an extended accessory superstore with price reductions on many lines.

A team of experts will be on hand to guide first time buyers through the complete caravan ownership process, whether it's a touring caravan or holiday home. Flexible finance packages are available.

This service also includes helping first time buyers to find the ideal park location for caravan holiday homes in the Heart of England, inland Mid Wales or the Mid Wales coast. Buy-

Market has vital role

OSWESTRY has a proud history as a market town and its markets contin-market town and its markets continue to be a vital part of community life.

The markets provide a diverse, and often unusual, range of interesting stalls, selling and providing a vast range of services.

Markets have been a major part of the trading and historical importance of Oswestry and have existed for many centuries. The first known charter was granted by John FitzAlan, Lord of the Manor To our Burgesses of our village of Oswaldestree.

The Powis Hall Indoor Market Hall was originally maintained by the Lord of the Manor, and was the Town Hall or Guildhall until premises adjacent were built in 1782.

From this date until 1960 the building was used as a corn exchange, then as a butter and theese market. The hall was reconstructed in 1963 and is open every Wednesday, Friday and Saturday throughout the year.

The indoor market enjoyed a revamp in 2012 after winning an online voting competition in The Times newspaper. Various regular events are held in the market, including card making and craft sessions.

Oswestry's outdoor market on the Bailey.

Oswestry's outdoor market on the Bailey Head is also an important feature of the town. The outdoor market area also provides an opportunity for specialist events to be staged such as antique and continental markets.

as indoor and outdoor markets, Oswestry has regular speciality markets such as a recent antiques event. Peter Searle was one of the stallholders.

Hillfort is important landmark

A large group of campaigners recently attended a protest at the hillfort to campaign against housing plans

OSWESTRY has many attractions for people of all ages to enjoy.

One of the town's most significant landmarks is Old Oswestry Hillfort, which experts say is one of the most important forts of its kind in Europe.

Old Oswestry was built and occupied during the Iron Age and is one of the best-preserved hillforts in Britain.

During this period Britain was divided into numerous tribal territories, and the hillfort was probably a stronghold and principal settlement for one of these.

A fine example of a 'multi-vallate' or multiple rampart hillfort, it is one of a dense band of hillforts in eastern Wales and the Marches.

It remained in use for almost 1,000 years. The hillfort has impressive ramparts and entrances, which are the result of many centuries of modification.

Old Oswestry Hillfort has played a key role in the development of the area over centuries

The importance of the hillfort has been recently brought into sharp focus after plans for housing were submitted near the monument as part of Shropshire Council's SAMDev development bluewint

Campaigners have been battling the plans over concerns the proposed homes will spoil the area and its history views both to and from the hillfort. Various events and activities have been held by the campaigners to protest about the housing plans. One of the activities saw a large group of campaigners visit the hillfort to demonstrate how important they felt the landscape was to the area and its history.

Community games.

People of all ages tried their hands at all kinds of sport and leisure, from football and tennis to more unusual sports such as fencing and hula hooping.

Guest of honour at the games was Oswestry's own sporting hero, Amy Hughes. The 27-year-old ran 53 marathons in 53 days to raise money for charity but also to inspire young people to take up sport and fitness.

Organiser of the games, Clive Knight, urged people to use the inspiration of Amy and of the games to carry on enjoying keeping fit.

He said: "It's wonderful to see so many people of all ages and all abilities in the park. Children tried sports with their parents and even their grandparents. It would be such a great shame if they went home and did nothing until the games next year."

Among those involved in the games, which were set up to celebrate the London Olympics, were a host of sports clubs and fitness organisations from in and around the town.

Oswestry Team Tennis is based in the park itself along with Cae Glas bowling green, which now has a set of junior bowls as a legacy from the games.

Mike Markham from Oswestry Team Tennis said: "We have 238 members and would welcome more. Our aim is to make tennis available and affordable to all."

Tadpoles use very clever strategies to aid survival ered by many to be an odd time to talk about frogs. All amphibians and reptiles are beginning to wind down at this time of the year and prepare themselves for a short (in the cases of frogs and toads) or longer (in the case of toads) or longer (In the case of the reptiles) hibernation. But there's often a bit of a puzzle to be pondered in the autumn when it comes to these animals and in fact it involves one of the first stages of their life cycle; tadpoles. Why do some of us have tadpoles in our ponds, swimming around as if they came out of their spawn just yesterday? Most frog spawn is laid in the early spring, (in-deed it's often at risk of freezing if ex-posed above the water's surface) and yet some of you will have noticed that there have been tadpoles swimming round your pond for the entire summer, without them turning into frogs

I've got the same 'problem' in my pond but actually it's quite common for tadpoles to overwinter in a water source if they have not experienced the right conditions to de velop.

So what are those conditions?
The pond may be so crowded that the tadpoles are short of food.

This is likely to resolve itself over time and as long as the water doesn't entirely freeze, they will develop into frogs next spring. On the other hand the pond may be too cold, due to a shaded location or steep sided construction.

If the pond is shaded, perhaps consider cutting back some of the overhanging vegetation to increase the amount of light and warmth reaching the surface of the water.

You can even drop a couple of drops of iodine solution into the water.
This will kick-start their development.
However it's important not to do anything at this stage.

It would be catastrophic for the little frogs to complete their development in the middle of winter when there are few natu-ral sources of food in the garden to support them. But all this talk of possible solutions may be redundant for there is fascinating evidence to suggest that these over-winter-ing tadpoles may be a deliberate strategy for some frogs and one that capitalises not on the spring that they were born/laid but on next year's spring. Tadpoles that over-winter in the pond and leave the water a year later have an advantage over those tadpoles that complete their development in one year and leave in late summer. And anyway, frogs tend to know what they're doing. The common frog has a lifespan of approximately seven to eight years and if it's made it to adulthood, it will undoubtedly have survived many a harsh

Council bosses § respondtoplan delays claims COUNCIL chiefs have hit back at criticism over why planning applications are taking so long to be decided. They say the planning process can be complex and there are several factors which can impact it, including the council's own resources as well as issues dealt with on behalf of applicants.

Malcolm Price, Shropshire Council's portfolio holder for regulatory services, launched the defence of the authority in response to concerns raised by council member Roger Evans on why there are been delays in the planning pro-

He said: "The process of dealing with a planning application from receipt to decision can be complex and the time taken to deal with an application impacted by a number of factors.

"Some of these rest with the council, its processes, resources and policies, other factors will be in the hands of

"Consequently planning performance, and by this I mean the time taken to complete the process from initial concept to issuing a decision, is impacted by a number of variables some of which are not within the council's control. "The important point is that the council continues to take robust and defensible decisions, which has been the case and is borne out by a high success rate at planning

MORE than 8,500 dairy farmers headed for Shropshire in a show of unity amid the continued crisis gripping the industry.

Farmers from across Britain turned out for the UK Dairy Day held in Telford, in what was billed as the biggest show of in what was billed as the biggest show of its kind in the country.

By noon many of the car parks in Telford town centre were full, and hundreds of drivers parked on grass verges around the area.

The event included a cattle show, where 180 animals were judged for 11 different classes, educational seminars on how to run their businesses more efficiently, and more than 300 trade stands. trade stands.

Farmers said the event was a show of solidarity as they continued to lose money. But they warned that many farmers would lose their livelihoods in the next 12 months unless there was a big turnaround in the industry's fortunes.

One Shropshire farmer called for a return to One Shropshire farmer caned for a return to old-style milk quotas, warning that for genera-tions to come people will struggle to eat unless action was taken to save the industry. Ben Yates, of Wilfred Maddocks Farm near Newport, said he expected to see a significant shortly after Christmas, people can't keep losing money."

Mr Yates, who is 39, also criticised politicians of all parties, saying they did not understand the importance of the farming industry.
He said Labour's appointment of vegan MP Kerry McCarthy as agriculture minister summed up the mood at Westminster.
"Do they want people to eat? Do they want to go hungry? Eventually, I think that is what will happen. It won't happen in my lifetime but it will come.
"You see all the new houses they are building in Shifnal and in Newport, and those people have got to eat."

Jane Whittaker, who runs Ivy House Farm in Weston-under-Redcastle with husband Andy and daughter Izzy, also predicted farmers would leave the industry over the coming months.

The farm took first prize for Intermediate Two-Year-Old-in-Milk category with Knowlesmere Goldwyn Abrakaboom.

Mrs Whittaker said her family's farm was going through a very difficult period, and like many in the industry was holding out in the hope that things would eventually get better.

"It has always been an up and down industry, but times are very bad at the moment."

Mr Harrison said he was very concerned

Mr Harrison said he was very concerned about the welfare of farmers at the moment, although he believed the long-term outlook for the industry was still good.

He said for many farmers, the event was a chance for people to forget about their troubles and enjoy the show, and said it was also important in showing young people that, for all the troubles of the present, dairy farming had an exciting future.

Demonstrating one possible new market for milk was Wesley Harrington, who showed off a range of milk-based cocktails at the event – all made from Shropshire milk and fruit.

"The idea is to help the farmers around these challenging times," said Miss Barningham.

"The aim is to help them look at how they look at their farm as a business, how they can expand their milk output, it's all about sharing knowledge." She said one popular attraction was a veterinary display, where the vets painted a cow to show its different organs.

"The idea is that farmers will learn about their animals, and it will be useful to them in monitoring their health."

Miss Barningham said the event was also an opportunity to show farmers the latest cutting-edge technologies which could transform the way they worked. These days it is now possible to monitor milking from an iPhone," she said.

Bangers selling like hot cakes

Sales of 'banger' cars are ris- means there are more buyers than cars ing fast, while prices are even increasing for cars aged 10.5 years old and over.

Even though there are now more bangers coming on to the market, the average price paid at auction for this type of car at auction has risen from £725 in 2013 to £875 in June 2015.

The availability of cheap PCP (personal contract plan) deals for new cars has encouraged many drivers to give up their bangers.

However, even with more bangers coming on to the market, there has been a substantial rise in demand that available, so prices have firmed up.

Rupert Pontin, head of valuations at Glass's, said: "We are seeing something interesting going on.

"Since the start of 2013, the number of cars over 10.5 years old being sold at auction has increased by around 50

"We believe this is because large numbers of buyers are selling their bangers and signing up to low-cost new and used car PCP deals to get behind the wheel of a newer model.

"However, instead of this flood of bangers entering the market leading to a collapse in values, they have actually increased quite substantially. Enough new buyers are entering the market to soak up the extra volume and the banger market is actually in excellent health.

Pontin added: "Partially this is as a result of improving economic conditions as more people are feeling confident about buying and running a car at the entry level. However, the quality of older cars on sale is improving all the time, which helps.

"We see many bangers going through auction in excellent condition at very reasonable prices and, for people, they make extremely sensible purchases.

"It is very much a case of: 'The banger is dead. Long live the banger'

ioins "Trust My Garage"

.we strive to get it right first time, every time"

MX-5 still sets benchmark

By Graham Breeze

The suits at Mazda know a thing or two about sports cars so you just have to take note when they announce changes to the world's best selling two-seater.

With a choice of nine models across five trim levels, the all-new Mazda MX-5 is in showrooms now and is set to reaffirm Mazda's dominance of the affordable sports car sector.

It's always a brave move to make changes to a best-seller and for generations Mazda has been careful not to lose sight of why they have the sports car market cornered. So it's no surprise to find the new arrival is still instantly recognisable as an MX-5 though different it certainly is.

The latest MX-5 was conceived and developed under the concept of "innovate in order to preserve". In short that means you still get all the expected driving agility and fun alongside improved safety and efficiency improvements.

Offered with a choice of either 2 Olitre or 1.5litre SKYACTIV-G petrol engines it comes with generous standard equipment, new levels of safety technology and is priced from £18,495 with a choice of nine models across five trim levels

It's the lightest MX-5 since the iconic original, and is shorter, lower and wider than the outgoing car, with the smallest overhangs and lowest centre of gravity yet.

There's just no hiding the fact that Mazda

The introduction of SKYACTIV technology proved a real turning point in Mazda's for tunes in the UK and allows the all-new MX-5's lightweight petrol engines to deliver new levels of performance and economy.

Driving the 2.0litre 160PS Sports version through the mountains of Scotland was the ideal test with 0-62 in 7.3 seconds, a top speed of 133mph, average fuel consumption of just over 40mpg and CO2 emissions of 161g/km on challenging roads.

Handling was more than acceptable and comfort levels surprising good, considering the difficult road conditions. But while road noise was barely audible there was a little too much wind noise for my liking, even with the roof down

Across the range the MX-5 features alloy wheels and the test car had stunning eightspoke versions

You also get LED headlights, a leather steering wheel and gear knob, plus a light-weight and sleek fabric hood.

SF-L models add LFD daytime running lights, climate control air-conditioning, DAB radio. Bluetooth and cruise control. plus Mazda's MZD-Connect connectivity and in-fotainment system with 7-inch Colour touchscreen display and Multimedia Commander. SE-L models with the 2.0-litre 160ps engine are distinguished by 17-inch Gunmetal alloy wheels and piano black door mirrors, and benefit from a strut brace and limited slip

Step up to Sport trim and both the 1.5 and 2.0-litre cars feature rain-sensing wipers, rear parking sensors, smart keyless entry, Premi-

You get all the expected driving agility and fun alongside improved safety and efficiency improvements. um Bose sound system and heated leather

With the 1.5-litre 131ps engine, Sport trim MX-5's come with 16-inch Gunmetal alloy wheels and piano black door mirrors.

The test car had a set-up that includes sports suspension featuring Bilstein damp ers, a limited slip differential and strut brace.

Versions of the all-new Mazda MX-5 fitted with Mazda's integrated navigation system come with three-years of free Euro pean map upgrades, while the range topping 2.0-litre 160ps Sport Nav is available with the optional £350 Safety Pack, which includes high beam control and blind spot monitoring with rear cross traffic alert

Twenty-five years after launch the Mazda MX-5 still remains the benchmark as one of the best and most affordable sports cars on the market - and it looks even better on the half hour as the visitors bossed much of the first half, Llanfair stormed back in style with a terrific counter attacking display that brought four quickfire goals in the second half.

Andrew Hughes levelled with the first of his brace just before the break, Paul Griffiths made it 2-1 on 74 minutes before Chris Gethin increased the margin two minutes later.

Hughes then notched his second of the game on 81 minutes before Griffiths completed a stunning comeback with his second goal from the penalty spot five minutes from time.

In the first half, keeper Lee Andrew was in the thick of the action to deny Porthmadog who were left to reflect on spurning several chances despite taking the lead on 28 minutes when a close range effort from Williams following a corner was judged to have crossed the line.

Llanfair disputed the decision, but were back on terms right on half-time when a slick counter attacking move led to Alun Hughes crossing for his brother Andrew Hughes to head into the top right hand corner.

As the game wore on, Port pushed forward to find a winner which created space that Llanfair exploited which saw Griffiths break through before dinking the ball over the advancing keeper.

Moments later, the hosts counter attacked again and a pass from Andrew Hughes fell for Gethin who smashed the ball on the volley straight into the top corner.

A fourth followed when Andrew Hughes was played inside the left hand channel and slotted the ball into the far corner for a 4-1 lead.

Gray day as New Saints held again

Airbus UK 1 The New Saints 1

THE New Saints had to settle for a third draw in five Welsh Premier outings after Airbus UK battled back for a deserved point at the Hollingsworth Group Stadium.

The Wingmakers, the only side to defeat the treble winning champions last season, trailed at half time to Mike Wilde's 24th minute strike.

But they salvaged a point eight minutes from time when Tony Gray found the corner of the net with a glancing header courtesy of Tom Field's in-viting free-kick from the left left. "We did well for first 45 minutes, we could have been two or three up, which would have put a dif-ferent slant on the game," said manager Craig Har-rison

"It was disappointing that we did not kill he game off when we had the chances as 1-0 is never enough against a good side like Airbus who are particularly

Airbus looked a threat from corners early on, but Airbus looked a threat from corners early on, but the Saints had the more clear cut chances in the first period with home keeper James Coates called into action to save at the feet of Wilde who had latched onto a ball over the top.

Wilde was proving a threat, with the forward sending a volley narrowly over the bar after some terrific control on the edge of the box.

But he found the net midway through the first half when, after the hosts had failed to clear, the

Tennis club Jones stars — but thirds still beaten

A VIRTUOSO performance in the field by club stalwart Richard Jones was not enough to save Oswest-ry III from a three-wicket defeat against Calverh-all in the last game of the season at Morda Road, writes JOHN BRIDGWATER.

After Oswestry had been bowled out for just 88 in their Shropshire League Division Three clash, Jones took four wickets, held two stinging catches and ran out an opponent – but Calverhall still scraped home at 90-7.

Keith Sadler's 23 was the top score for Oswestry and was indeed the highest individual innings

Star bowler for the visitors was Oliver Griffiths with 5-21, while his opening partner Alex Parker took 2-36.

Opener David Hares got Calverhall off to a good start with 19, but none of their batsmen looked really happy against Jones (4-27) and the Oswestry club's leading league wicket-taker Adam Woodcock (2-17).

Parker came to the wicket with Calverhall still needing 11 runs for victory – and he duly settled the matter by hitting his first three balls to the boundary for four.

Winning treble for high-flying Eagles

RUGBY UNION by John Bridgwater

OSWESTRY maintained their impressive start to rugby's Cheshire South after making it three wins on the bounce with a 32-12 success over Dukinfield in their first home outing at Granville Park.

The bonus point victory that avenged a defeat in the Cheshire Bowl kept the Eagles well placed in third spot, just one point adrift of the early leaders.

From the start, Dukinfield attacked with intent but the Eagles' defence was strong and composed, with fly half Fin Grogan clearing the lines and putting the home side back on the front foot

Undaunted, Oswestry continued with some excellent running play as scrum half Hamish Fuller let his backs loose, while the pack produced some outstanding rucking and offloads to maintain the momentum.

Dominating

With captain Andy Smith urging his men on, Chris Hesketh and Guy Howell proved a handful up front, and from one of these scrums they earned a penalty that Grogan converted to regain the lead.

Consistency

Manager Danny Barton is looking for his GUILSFIELD side to discover more consistency as they prepare for Satur-day's big home fixture with Caernarfon Town.

Although they have lost just once this season, and lie joint second, Barton feels there is more to come from his players.

"Saturday's a massive game, and we just need to find some consistency as, from week to week, I don't know what team is going to turn up," he said.

"Although it has been a good start with one defeat in six, there will be changes as I have high expectations from the team."

He added: "It was not the best first half against Mold. We conceded a poor goal early on which put us on the back foot, but we showed some good spirit in the second half to get a point which we just about deserved."
